Workshop Rationale

Conducting a qualitative research workshop is essential to empower researchers with the nuanced skills required to explore and interpret complex human experiences. Qualitative research delves beyond statistical data, focusing on the richness of narratives, perceptions, and context. By fostering a collaborative environment, the workshop promotes peer learning and critical thinking. Ultimately, it equips researchers with the tools to unearth meaningful insights, ensuring their studies contribute substantively to societal understanding and policy development.

Workshop Objectives

This workshop aims to cultivate a deep understanding of methodologies like interviews, focus groups, and content analysis. Participants will learn to navigate ethical considerations, refine data collection techniques, and master the art of thematic analysis.

Workshop Participants

The course is targeted at faculty and residents interested in qualitative research from all over the country. The number of participants is restricted to 30 with first come first serve basis.
